Vote Very Close On Liquor Option; Colmer Breezes

Jackson county voters went down the line Tuesday for William Colmer, John Stennis and a state liquor option bill.

Of the three matters voted on in the Democratic primary, the race for the congressional nomination drew the most county voters—3830.

Incumbent Colmer polled 2887 to Walter Lowry's 943.

Late Thursday 266 of the district's 358 precincts showed his vote at 30,487. Lowry had 7840.

JAPANESE 'GHOST TOWN'

Tokyo (AP)—A company decision to close Japan's most famous gold mine seems likely to establish a Western-style "ghost town" in the Orient.

Some 580 miners and the town of 10,000 which depends upon the mine are protesting against the shutdown on historic Sado Island, once a place of exile for Japan's emperors.

The vein was struck 351 years ago and has been worked almost steadily ever since. Once the employed 100,000 men but now the paydirt has petered out.

Witness Explains Testimony Mistake When Called Back

A witness was recalled to the stand at the BVD hearing Wednesday after the company attorney charged her with perjury in her earlier testimony.

Reappearing was Lena May, whom the firm says was discharged for refusing to return to work when a committee "improperly" sought a meeting with management during working hours.

Mrs. May claims that she was not a member of the committee, had been in the rest room during the incident Apr. 22 and was picked out and fired later in the morning.

As proof of her contention, Charles Kyle, National Labor Relations Board attorney, submitted Friday a report she said she had written of a talk made to plant personnel after the committee was fired.

The talk was made by Dmitri Nicholas, BVD vice president. Mrs. May said she heard the speech, made notes on a piece of paper, then wrote out her report on the back of the sheet after she was fired.

Wednesday morning, Harry Friedlander of New York, BVD attorney, told NLRB trial examiner Eugene Dixon that a handwriting expert had said the report was not written by Mrs. May.

When recalled Wednesday afternoon, Mrs. May said that after a talk with Nicholas Monday morning she had begun to think over the incidents after the firing.

"Original Becomes Blurred"

With the help of her son Bill May, 19, she said, they finally remembered that he had made for her a copy of her original report after the original had become blurred when water spilled on it. She had since forgotten the incident, she said.

The hearing, in the county courthouse, concerns an unfair labor practice charge lodged against BVD by the New Orleans office (Continued on page six)

Man Saved In Yard Fire

Ingalls Spectators Thrilled By Rescue

A flame-trapped crane operator was dramatically rescued Tuesday as fire caused extensive damage at Ingalls shipyard.

The blaze, discovered about 3:30 p. m., did great but as yet undetermined damage to a ship under construction and threatened the entire installation.

Flames, which suddenly licked about the gantry crane cab occupied by J. E. Gibson high above the ground, horrified spectators.

They watched helplessly as Gibson put one leg out of his cab preparing to jump, then drew back into the dense smoke.

Gibson was saved when another operator swung his cable close enough to the man for him to grab. He was swung to the deck of a ship where he collapsed. Just as Gibson was removed from the cab, it was engulfed by flames.

Operator of the rescuing crane was still unidentified by the company late Thursday.

The blaze erupted beneath the extreme eastern end of the way supporting the fore body of the Amersand, and ore carrier under construction for the Maryland Drydock Co., and was apparently caused by a broken acetylene line.

Within a short time after the outbreak, all employees assigned to the burning ship were accounted for and known to be safe, yard officials said.

Flames threatened to spread to an LST on an adjoining way but were brought under control after only charring the gangplank.

The blaze was in hand in about 35 minutes. Fighting it were the yard fire department and equipment (Continued on page six)

Two Are Injured Fighting Blaze At Gas Station

Two men were injured and approximately $900 damage was done when a gasoline pump at Garrison's Pan-Am station in Pascagoula caught fire Monday morning.

R. A. Hudson, captain in the Pascagoula fire department, suffered a torn finger requiring several stitches, while fighting the blaze, and O'Neal Mars, Gautier, employe, was burned on both arms, fire chief James Hudson reported.

The fire occurred when a truck driver struck a match and gasoline at the mouth of the feeder line flared up. The driver became excited, Hudson said, and drove away, throwing the line on the ground with the gas still running from it.

Firemen brought the fire under control by use of a high pressure fog, Hudson said.
